AFRICAN STUDIES
The African Studies Program facilitates interdisciplinary teaching and research among scholars who focus on Africa. The program is recognized nationally for its excellence in academic offerings. More than 80 faculty members are members of the program and offer courses in 35 departments.

EAST ASIAN STUDIES
The Center for East Asian Studies acts as a clearinghouse and coordinating center bringing together an interdisciplinary group of faculty, staff, and students interested in the study of China, Japan, Korea, and Tibet. The center promotes and supports study of the region through academic programs, conferences, public lectures, and fellowships. Although the center does not presently offer a graduate degree, it does offer a doctoral minor and also supports students in other graduate programs who wish to focus on the East Asian region. More than 40 core faculty members offer courses related to East Asia in the humanities, social sciences, and other fields through approximately 20 departments in six schools and colleges. Graduate students pursuing study of Chinese, Japanese, Korean, Tibetan, or certain other Chinese minority languages may apply for Foreign Language and Area Studies (FLAS) Fellowships and other awards administered by the center. The East Asian Collection of Memorial Library houses a large collection of vernacular and English-language materials on East Asia.

EUROPEAN STUDIES
The European studies program, in cooperation with the Jean Monnet Centre of Excellence (JMCE), and the DAAD Center for German and European Studies (CGES) promotes knowledge and understanding of Europe both on and off campus. Established in 1968, the graduate/professional certificate program provides integrated interdisciplinary studies on contemporary Europe for graduate students. The program brings together scholars on campus interested in different aspects of Europe to discuss topics of mutual interest. More than twenty UW–Madison departments offer courses on Europe (apart from language courses), providing the largest number of courses on any region of the world other than the United States.

GLOBAL STUDIES
The global studies minor is both interdepartmental and interdisciplinary. Global Studies and the Center for World Affairs (WAGE) jointly support the minor, which draws on faculty expertise and courses from more than 30 departments and programs across all colleges. The vast majority of listed courses are housed in Letters & Science departments.

LATIN AMERICAN, CARIBBEAN, AND IBERIAN STUDIES
The Latin American, Caribbean, and Iberian Studies (LACIS) Program offers three graduate programs: master of arts, a doctoral minor, and a dual degree in law and Latin American, Caribbean, and Iberian studies.

The mission of the graduate program is to provide an interdisciplinary foundation for the study of Latin America, the Caribbean, Spain, and Portugal. The University of Wisconsin—Madison is nationally recognized for excellence in research and teaching on these regions. The LACIS program includes a core faculty of more than 50 members and course offerings in 40 disciplines and professional schools, including agricultural and applied economics, anthropology, business, community and environmental sociology, comparative literature, environmental studies, gender and women’s studies, geography, history, law, music, political science, population health, Quechua, Yucatec Maya, sociology, and Spanish and Portuguese.

Core faculty have received extensive national and international recognition. Faculty research interests include development and labor economics; Andean ethnohistory and ethnology; African Diaspora art; conservation of the neotropics; cultural geography; social history of Latin America; democratic consolidation; Brazilian social stratification; comparative social movements; Luso-Brazilian literature and culture; colonial and modern Latin American literature, film, and culture; Spanish literature from the medieval to the modern period; and political economy. UW—Madison also publishes the journal Luso-Brazilian Review.

While the majority of candidates in the program are from the United States, a significant number are from Latin America, the Caribbean, and Iberia. Since 1994, 30 percent of the program’s candidates have been Latino/Latin American/Caribbean. Seventy percent have been women. Funding assistance for candidates specializing in Latin America, the Caribbean, and Iberia includes Title VI Foreign Language and Area Studies (FLAS) fellowships, Helen Firstbrook Franklin Fellowship, Advanced Opportunity Fellowship (if applicable), Latin America course (260) teaching assistantships, and the Tinker-Nave Field Grant Program. Please contact the program office for more information on funding opportunities.

RUSSIAN, EAST EUROPEAN AND CENTRAL ASIAN STUDIES
The Russian, East European and Central Asian studies (REECAS) program draws on the strength of long-established programs in anthropology, language and literature, political science, geography, history, folklore, sociology, and law. Faculty research interests include ethnicity and nationalism, legal problems of privatization, the politics and cultures of borderland regions in Eurasia, and the thought and politics of East-Central Europe.
Applicants are strongly encouraged to apply for the Foreign Language and Area Studies (FLAS) (http://flas.wisc.edu) fellowship, which is administered through CREECA and is due approximately February 15.

The departments offering courses pertaining to Russia, Eastern and Central Europe, and Central Asia include Anthropology, Communication Arts, Comparative Literature and Folklore Studies, Geography, History, Jewish Studies, Journalism, Languages and Cultures of Asia, Law, Political Science, Slavic Languages and Literature, Scandinavian Studies, Sociology, and Theatre and Drama.

SOUTHEAST ASIAN STUDIES

The Center for Southeast Asian Studies offers a formal graduate program in Southeast Asian studies and facilitates interdisciplinary study on Southeast Asia in intercollege, professional, and other degree programs throughout the university. The Southeast Asian studies program provides students with the opportunity to concentrate their study of this dynamic region in several disciplines and professional areas: anthropology, communications (journalism), development, education, economics, environmental studies, geography, history, linguistics, literature, music and dance (performing arts), political science, public health, religion, sociology, and urban and regional planning, as well as natural resources, business, and law, and public policy. Faculty expertise and library holdings are particularly strong for in-depth study of Cambodia, Indonesia, Laos, Philippines, Thailand, and Vietnam. The goal of the program is to provide students with a strong area and language background on Southeast Asia and to prepare them for a range of academic and professional careers.

Language study is a critical component in area studies, and the center encourages students to develop proficiency in at least one Southeast Asian language. During the academic year, instruction is offered through the Department of Asian Languages and Cultures in five Southeast Asian languages: Filipino (Tagalog), Hmong, Indonesian, Thai, and Vietnamese. Each language is offered at two or more levels of instruction, with advanced readings and literature courses available in Indonesian. The center also facilitates participation in the Southeast Asian Studies Summer Institute (SEASSI), which provides instruction during the summers at multiple levels in eight languages of the region: Burmese, Filipino, Hmong, Indonesian/Malaysian, Javanese, Khmer, Lao, Thai, and Vietnamese, and depending on enrollments, Javanese. Though SEASSI is hosted by the center and based in Madison, it is open to students from anywhere. More information is available on the SEASSI website (http://seassi.wisc.edu).
