Assessments and Examinations

Successful completion of a comprehensive master’s exam or a Ph.D. qualifying examination is required.

Language Requirements

Language study will be required for many students; specifics are determined in consultation with the advisor and co-advisor.

REQUIRED COURSES

Students choose from one of four concentrations/tracks (also referred to as "sections") in the department. Students in the Cultural concentration will earn a master of arts. Students in the Archaeology, Biological, or Intersectional concentrations will work with their advisor and a department committee to determine if the coursework they take meets the requirements for a master of arts or a master of science. If students are interested in the Cultural concentration, they should see information about the master of arts (http://guide.wisc.edu/graduate/anthropology/anthropology-ma/#requirementstext).

Archaeology Concentration Track

Student must complete a total of 30 credits of graduate course work, including three seminars (ANTHRO 942 Seminar-Archaeological Problems) in archaeology. Substitutions for the required seminars in archaeology are not normally allowed. (Incoming M.A. students must take at least two seminars as a part of the Ph.D. requirements, and these classes may be taken before or after the qualifying examination.)

These tracks are internal to the program and represent different pathways a student can follow to earn this degree. Track names do not appear in the Graduate School admissions application, and they will not appear on the transcript.

Biological Concentration Track

Student must complete a total of 30 credits of graduate course work. The following courses are strongly recommended in preparation for the general section of the qualifying examination:
