

LAW, J.D.

REQUIREMENTS

Students in the J.D. program have the flexibility to design their education in a way that caters to their passions and fulfills their professional goals.

In the first year, students learn the fundamentals of legal analysis and reasoning, as well as legal research and writing. Topics include contracts, criminal law, civil procedure, property, torts, and more.

In the second and third years of the program students have the opportunity to explore the curriculum to determine where their interests lie, while also developing the lawyering skills needed after graduation.
