

AGING STUDIES, CERTIFICATE

Elevate your expertise in aging through the Certificate in Aging Studies. This certificate addresses the urgent need for professionals trained to support the growing population of older adults and enhance students' marketability in the field. It provides undergraduate students with comprehensive knowledge of the aging process from biological, psychological, and social perspectives. Designed to complement various degree programs, the certificate offers an interdisciplinary approach, allowing students to tailor their studies to their career interests with guidance from academic advisors.